OU To Face Bork: Ground Game vs. Air Attack

Vol. XLIII

Omaha, Nebraska, Friday, October 4, 1963

No. 4

OU Service Courses To Include Vocabulary, Speech and Accounting

The University of Omaha's Community Services Courses program has returned this fall with 20 non-credit courses and programs offered to adults every evening in the Epply Conference Center.

Over 350 persons are enrolled in courses ranging from vocabulary enrichment and rapid reading skills to speech for salesmen and accounting for non-accountants.

No textbooks or tests are required of enrollees nor must they be residents of Omaha.

A special feature this year is reduced rates for retired persons and married couples. Persons who have retired from gainful employment may take any non-credit course at half price. The married couples' rate will have one partner pay the full rate and the other pay half provided both register in the same course.

There are 25 married couples and 25 retired persons taking advantage of these lower rates.

Of special interest is a Friday evening course entitled "Politics and You" which will help prepare adults for the 1964 election year campaign.

"Politics and You," to be conducted by Omaha attorney Henry Pedersen, Jr., will be a lecture-discussion series beginning October 4 and ending November 8.

Appearing in person to describe their roles in local and state government will be: Mayor James Dworak, Oct. 11; Lieut. Governor Dwight Burney, Oct. 25; State Senator Richard Marvel and Governor Frank B. Morrison, Nov. 1.

Others scheduled to speak are: Unicameral Speaker William Moulton, City Councilman Warren Swigart, State GOP and Democratic committee chieftains Robert V. Denny and Russel V. Hanson and State Senator Hal Bridenbaugh.

"Politics and You" will conclude with a Tele-Lecture from GOP National Chairman William Miller of New York and John Bailey of Connecticut.

Greek Groups Help Boost Red Cross

On Oct. 23, Omaha University student groups swing into action to bolster the Douglas County American Red Cross blood bank.

According to Drive Chairman Gary Meester OU student organizations gave a total of 127 pints of blood during last year's drive.

"This year," Meester said, "we've set a goal of 150 pints."

First World Affairs Speaker to Appear At Auditorium Oct. 9

The Institute of World Affairs will sponsor the seasons first guest speaker, Mr. Hansen Baldwin, at 8:15 p.m., on Wed. Oct. 9th in the University of Omaha auditorium.

Mr. Baldwin will speak on "Arms: The Race and The Control."

A reporter for over thirty years, Mr. Baldwin, is an Annapolis graduate. He roamed the Pacific, African, and European theaters of operation during the second World War. He covered the D-day operations at Normandy and the subsequent fighting until the breakthrough at St. Lo.

His first-hand reporting has been factual and realistic.

Mr. Baldwin has been very close to the cold war problems. He has witnessed three atomic explosions and knows, not only the development of the bomb, but also its consequences.

A frequent contributor to leading national magazines, Mr. Baldwin, has authored or edited a dozen books. He is known as one of the most brilliant columnists of our times.

NOTICE

All those not able to go to Saturday's game may watch it on television. The OU-Northern Illinois game will be broadcast on KMTV at 11:20 Sunday night.

Students planning to enter law school in 1964-65 should plan to take the Law School Admission Test of the Educational Testing Service on either November 9, 1963; February 8, 1964; April 18, 1964, or August 1, 1964.

Scholarship applicants are urged to register for either the November or February test.

Application blanks and a Bulletin of Information for Candidates may be secured from Dr. A. Stanley Trickett, Room 310-C, Administration Building; Professor C. Glenn Lewis, Room 273-B, Administration Building, or Dr. B. Gale Oleson, Room 213, Administration Building.

Tryouts for the Omaha University Theater fall production will be held next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the administration auditorium.

OU Theater Director Dr. Edwin Clark has not announced the title of the production, but he did say it will have a fairly large cast.

All OU students are eligible to try out.

CO-ED OF THE WEEK

Sophomore Karen Cramer reigns as this week's "Co-ed of the Week."

Karen, majoring in elementary education, is a '62 graduate of Bishop Ryan High School, the first class to graduate from that school since its beginning in 1958.

On campus, the personable 19 year old "Co-ed" is carrying 14 credit hours. She is a member of the Indians for the second year and also works in the IBM office in the Administration Building.

This past summer, our "Co-ed" was chosen Miss Auto Show of 1963.

Karen is the oldest of two Cramer girls here at OU. Her younger sister, Jeannie, is a freshman. Karen also has a younger brother and another younger sister still in high school.

The GATEWAY extends its congratulations to the "Co-ed of the Week," Karen Cramer.

OU Wants Vengeance For Only Loss Last Year; Offense To Move?

By Mike Moran

The nation's all time greatest passer, college football's all time record holding pass receiver and an offense averaging over 43 points a game—that's just three of the problems that coach Al Caniglia and his OU Indians face tomorrow as they square off against powerful and pass happy Northern Illinois at DeKalb in the game of the year for both teams.

Co-ed of Week May Become a Defunct Feature

At the beginning of the semester, the GATEWAY editors felt that the addition of a "Co-ed of the WEEK" feature would be an appreciated addition to the paper. Apparently it hasn't been readily accepted. This conclusion was reached because of the lack of candidates submitted to the GATEWAY.

We feel that the co-eds chosen so far have been deserving of the title; also that there are many more on campus worthy of the title.

However, since we have not been able to induce anyone, or any organization on campus to submit names of likely candidates, we can do nothing but drop "Co-ed of the WEEK" feature.

We shall wait until the end of the month before we do so. If at that time we are encouraged to continue this feature by having more names submitted, we shall do so.

Remember, any person or any group on campus may submit a co-ed for the title. Co-ed's selected by the GATEWAY for this title are judged on the basis of their beauty, poise and personality. She must also have at least a 2.0 grade average.

Names may be submitted to room 116 AA, Student Publications.

Typical Freshman Selections Oct. 13

Typical Freshman candidates may check out their petitions Oct. 7 and must return them no later than Oct. 11 at 4:45.

One boy and one girl will be selected as "Typical Freshmen" Oct. 16 in an all-freshman election. Elections are scheduled from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., with a dance following. The winners will be announced at this time.

Rich Tompsett and Kathy Dayton, last year's Typical Freshmen, will announce the winners. Punch will be served and a combo will entertain. Dud Kersey and Pauline Williams are co-chairmen for the event.

Northern scouts told OU officials last week that they expected Omaha to be the big block in their path to national honors this year. Last year the Huskies, en route to an 8-2 season, including a 23-20 loss to Adam State in the Mineral Water Bowl, posted the only loss on OU's slate.

Little All-American George Bork hit 37 passes in that game to set an NCAA record and lead the Huskies to a come from behind 13-7 win. OU had led by 7-0 until the last nine minutes of the fourth quarter when Bork and big end Hugh Rohrschneider went to work.

Ninth Spot

Northern went on to a ninth place rank in the final NAIA standings while Omaha finished 11th. Bork set 18 NCAA passing records and Rohrschneider set an all-time receiving mark with 76 grabs.

OU had the game in the bag until they muffed several scoring opportunities, two from within the five yard line, in the last half. Only a dropped pass at the goal line by Jim Kettle prevented the Indians from taking the game.

This year, while OU has been having its troubles offensively, the Huskies have swamped three opponents. Whitewater State fell, 55-7 with Bork completing 27 passes for 417 yards. Winona State fell, 61-0 with Bork throwing this time for 388 yards and 5 touchdowns. Last Saturday Northern got by a strong Northeast Missouri team by 21-12 at Kirksville. Bork led the team to a 21-0 halftime lead while completing passes for 292 yards and two touchdowns.

'Formidable'

The Huskies are as formidable an opponent as Omaha will face in any season. The agile Bork and the 6-6 Rohrschneider make one of the greatest passing tandems in collegiate football, bar none. Add Gary Stearns, with 67 grabs last year and you have the pass happiest team in modern history.

On the weak side for Northern, their rushing attack is almost nil. OU's fearsome defensive line held the Huskies to a minus 11 yards rushing in last year's game. Bork definitely does not like to run the ball and he and Rohrschneider have been known to get upset when the other team plays football like it should be played.

Another thing is the "softy" schedule lined up by the Huskies for their openers. While OU (Cont. on page 7, cols. 4 & 5)

EDITORIAL VOICE

Opportunity Here

We on this campus are very fortunate each year to have the opportunity to see and hear some of the finest speakers in the country, or the world for that matter, talk with authority on issues that affect our everyday lives.

We have that opportunity through the Institute of World Affairs which begins its 18th year at this university October 9.

This week, the Gateway received a letter from Dean William Utley of the College of Adult Education, which is one of the sponsors of the program. In that letter, Dean Utley has asked the co-operation of this publication in publicizing this year's series.

This we have done and are glad to do. This we will continue to do.

However, we were quite unaware of the facts concerning the attendance of the student body at these programs and, we were also unaware of the effort the university makes in bringing top grade people here to speak.

We have learned through the letter that the attendance is, as Dean Utley says, "poor". Let us go one step beyond Mr. Utley's adjective; we think the attendance is degrading.

The letter went on to say that at the programs there are usually between 15 and 20 high school students in attendance. This small number of high school representatives is larger than the total number of OU students in attendance.

The Bootstrappers are the only group on campus to give any kind of support to the series.

We cannot see why anyone would forgo the chance to hear people like Hanson Baldwin, civilian military analyst, speak on "Arms: The Race and the Control." Or, take advantage of hearing Seymour Topping speak on "Kruschev's Strategy for World Communism," especially since Mr. Topping has just returned from four years in Moscow as the bureau head there for the New York Times.

What these people have to say is important. It's important to us and to you and to every citizen. As Dean Utley says, "this year's list of speakers is one of the finest that will appear on any campus, or in any city, in the country. Without exception, they are among the top authorities in their respective fields."

The expense of bringing these people in to speak is great. There are 14 sponsoring organizations and advisory committees throughout the city which take a part in helping with the expense. Even though, no sponsor contributes enough to pay for one speaker.

Even though there is great expense to the university, there is no charge to the student. Students are admitted to all lectures on their ID cards. Married students may bring their wives/husbands.

What it all adds up to is this. If you have the chance to attend the talks, do so. It is a great effort the university is making for you and for Omaha. Make an effort to take advantage of the six talks. You'll find them rewarding.

Letters to the Editors

Three of the GATEWAY'S editors who receive your letters

Editors note:

This "Letters to the Editor" column is intended by the GATEWAY to be a reflection of student and administration opinions; a sounding board, if you will.

The editors (pictured above in all their majestic honesty) must, of necessity, reserve the right to edit all letters because of space requirements or to eliminate a lot of nonsense which has a tendency to creep into most expression of opinion. Also, the editors reserve the right to answer all letters for whatever reason may be deemed necessary.

Letters printed in this column will be selected by the editors, but will be selected, inasmuch as it is possible, to present a balanced view of opinions received.

Opinions expressed do not necessarily express the views of the GATEWAY staff or its editors. All letters submitted must be signed in full, but names may be withheld if the writer feels his position threatened by the unequivocal expression of his feelings.

On with the show!

Dear GATEWAY Editors:

Everytime I pick up a GATEWAY and see the headlines "FRATS PLEDGE" or "FRATS MEET"; or see such statements as "frat rat row and junior delinquent groups" I have a distinct biological urge to lose my breakfast all over the independent body of students on this campus. These comments were certainly not made by any fraternity man.

I can see for brevity's sake, where the word "frat" in headline print can be condoned, but when a fraternity is referred to as a "frat" by some misinformed, non-joining independent who has no concept of organization, it carries it too far.

How many of these "frat rat" haters know how much the Greek system really contributes to the University? How much, for that matter, do the non-"frat" people contribute in comparison? As chairman of the school blood drive a year ago I saw the results. Ninety-five percent of the pint bottles filled were of "frat rat" blood. Transfusion anybody?

This leads to another question: Who are the actual leaders on campus? To answer, I ask another question. When was the last time the president of the Student Council was held by an independent student? Who were the majority of volunteers when OU had an election last spring? Who are the class officers? In short, who supports the school when help is needed? It's definitely not the people who shuffle back and forth to school who never bother to spend extra time outside their own selfish selves. Or the people who sit in the alcoves of the main cafeteria and wonder why some people call Omaha University "West Dodge High."

Watch out! There goes a "frat rat."

Fred Elsasser

Editors:

Well, students, election time is nearly here again. This is evident by all the hand-shaking and table-hopping that's going on in the OUampi Room.

For new students who aren't familiar with OU's system of student elections, be prepared to be grabbed, man-handled and grinned at by numerous candidates whom you have never met and who will probably never speak to you again after the votes have been counted.

I am tired of seeing the same old people elected time after time because they are "cute" or have a nice smile. When are our elections going to start being conducted as an election and not as a popularity contest?

J. C. Bouganin

A student could have all of the qualifications necessary to hold the office for which he is running, and yet, never be elected. Why? Because he isn't willing to "gun" for votes.

Would it be too much to ask that candidates running for an office be made to appear before the students who will vote for them? Appear in a manner befitting a candidate by making speeches and telling why they feel they are qualified to hold the office for which they are running. This might eliminate the "grinners" who can't even talk!

How can this be accomplished? Who knows? Don't bother to go to the Student Council because they were elected by the same old system and probably are already starting to shake hands for the next election. It's just a vicious circle.

Kathleen Vail

Editors:

From what has been stressed by President Kennedy and many prominent leaders in education, it becomes apparent that the backbone of our country and its future is underlined by the quality of the education of its people.

We, the people of this generation are being urged to return to school to secure a future for both ourselves and our country.

But returning to school, having the scholastic ability and the will to study are not the only factors confronting us. A lot of self-sacrifice and persistent efforts have to be put forth by the many who hold full or part-time employment.

After paying the higher tuition and fees, the ridiculously high prices of the ever changing books await you. Some, if not most, of the books that were used last semester for a specific course cannot be used this semester.

Most students will agree that courses like Math, the Sciences, Economics, History and other fairly stable courses do not change as much as we are led to believe, thus necessitating new and higher priced books.

After depleting one's bankroll, a student might seek to work more hours, resulting in lower grades and defeating the purpose of higher education that JFK is pushing.

Students Want To Start Club

A group of Omaha University students is attempting to start a club for young conservatives. The group plans to meet every Thursday evening at 7:30 in the student center.

Spokesman for the group, John McKernan urges all interested students to attend the next meeting. "The group also needs a faculty sponsor," McKernan said.

According to McKernan the club is interested in developing an understanding of the conservative philosophy of individual liberty and limited government.

McKernan said his group considers itself non-partisan.

"To stimulate discussion, the club hopes to bring several noted conservative speakers to OU during the school year," McKernan said.

Student warms up audio board for KWOU

Campus Radio Station Goes Off The Air Will Carry On Via Telephone Wire

KWOU, campus radio station, will no longer be heard on 880 kilocycles, as it has been in the past two years. Instead KWOU will be heard solely in the student center.

While in the student center, students will be able to listen to good music and get the weather and time. KWOU may be heard in the OUAMPI room, the lounge, recreation room and the cafeteria from 11:30 to 2 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Announcers

Over twenty students have auditioned for the position of announcer on KWOU in the past two weeks. Fifteen announcing spots were available. Paul Borge, head of the radio-TV department, and Art Bauer, program director of KWOU, judged recordings of the candidates voices before filling the positions.

Those selected as KWOU announcers, are: Dave Busch, Ed Callaway, Karin Cartensen, Virginia Cole, Dick Fletcher, Johnny Gomez and Arlene Grossman.

Pat Halloran, Judith Holt, Neil Klockseim, Larry Porter, Rich Russell, Nancy Schneiderwing, Larry Scott and Priscilla Watkins.

Programs

Features on KWOU include a noon and 1 p.m. newscast by Ed Callaway, Dick Fletcher and Larry Scott, possible remote hook-ups from the bowling alley and a Mystery Professor Contest. The latter will consist of a mystery voice, with a prize of a record album for the correct answer.

All clubs and organizations with news and announcements should place such information in the box in room G-13 of the Applied Arts Building. KWOU will go on the air Monday for the first broadcast of the year.

Need $$? Alumni Starts New Policy

Running short of cash? Pay-check not stretching quite far enough? If so, you may borrow up to five dollars from the Alumni Association, beginning Monday.

To get a loan a student must present his activity card to Association Executive Secretary Warren Wittekind in Room 232 Student Center.

The only requirement is that the student sign a pledge promising to repay the money within a month.

Phys Ed Students To Fremont Today

Fremont Lakes will be the site of the P.E. Majors and Minors first overnight.

The outing will begin at 3 p.m. this afternoon and conclude at noon Saturday.

Despite Winds Band Day Is Hit

Despite gusts of wind up to 40 m.p.h., Band Day was termed "extremely successful" by Jack Malik, Director of Bands at Omaha University.

Fourteen high school bands within a radius of 100 miles of Omaha combined to give football fans a classy halftime show during the OU-Idaho State game Sept. 28.

A downtown parade also highlighted the day for the high school students.

After performing, the musicians were taken to the Student Center where they ate dinner and were entertained by OU's Johnny Ray Gomez and his combo.

"Band Day at OU is becoming more popular every year with the high schools in our area," said Malik. "We had nearly 800 kids plus 40 baton twirlers here this year."

300 Lb. Electro-Magnet Used by Physics Dept.

Omaha University Physics Department maintains a 300 pound electro-magnet to be used in experiments which require a high magnetic field.

The basic parts were purchased separately to cut cost and constructed by Assistant instructor Charles Sedlacek.

Mr. Sedlacek is measuring the strength of the magnetic fields by use of an instrument borrowed from Nebraska Wesleyan.

The electro-magnet will be used for future advance courses in physics labs.

Tigers Growl as Arnold Air Society Takes Over

This week marked the seventh consecutive year that the Arnold Air Society's "Tigers" have appeared on campus for a week of harrasing, callisthenics and pledge duties.

"Tiger Week," as this period is referred to among the AFROTC Cadets, is the preparation of the junior cadets for informal initiation into Arnold Air Society on Saturday night of this week.

The week's activities, which are planned by the senior cadet officers, include: "Tigers" reporting for duty at 6:30 a.m. each morning, greeting all active members of AAS and other "pledge duties" such as duck walking across the campus while reciting the Military Code of Conduct.

mony, dinner and dance at the Offutt Air Force Base Officer's club.

Eighteen new members are expected to be sworn in on Sunday night. They are: Raymond Able, Bill Applegate, John Anderson, Joe Bensen, Bob Cords, Loren Drum, Rudy Duda, Dick Giblin and Gordon Gould.

Other "Tigers" include: Larry Hammer, Leonard Jensen, Stan Keast, Jim Keyser, Mike Kissen, Karl Luefschvitz, Herbert Rhodes, Doug Ragnow, John Stalley and Dick Treacle.

At this time four "Tigers" from last semester will be sworn in at the ceremony. They are: Doug Falconer, Dennis Quinn, Stan Menze and Dick Smith.

AAS pledges brace for an upper classman's harrasment

During "Tiger Week" it is not an uncommon sight to see a group of "green fatigued" cadets marching to and from classes, diving into the grass when a senior officer commands "AIR RAID!" and reciting the phonetic alphabet while doing push-ups in the halls between classes.

It may seem to many of the students on campus, that this week is a bit childish and even cruel to the junior officers of the AFROTC. "Tiger" Bill Applegate summed up the feelings of the Tigers this week when he said, "It's not so bad. We sometimes have more fun than the seniors. And don't forget there's always Friday when we can get even.... I think?"

Friday in "Tiger Week" is comparable to the skip-day in the greek's pledging program.

Activities of "Tiger Week" are capped off on Sunday evening with a formal swearing in cere-

Nursing Program Tough For Students

There are 193 affiliate nursing students enrolled in the nursing education program, according to Miss Dorothy Patach, Director of Nursing at Omaha University.

These student nurses are affiliated with four hospitals in the Omaha area. Clarkson Hospital has 50 students; Immanuel 46; Jennie Edmundson, Council Bluffs 26; and Methodist, 71 students.

There are four men enrolled in this program. All are affiliated with Methodist Hospital.

"The affiliated nurses must live in dormitories at the hospital where they are enrolled. They attend OU three days a week and usually carry from 10 to 14 credit hours," Miss Patach said.

Their courses include chemistry, microbiology, psychology and communications.

Fifteen students are taking the pre-nursing program. "They are not presently affiliated with any hospital and will probably apply for admission to the University of Nebraska," Miss Patach said.

Pre-nursing students take general college courses such as psychology, sociology, English and usually carry from 12 to 18 hours.

The graduate nurse program has 86 students including five women bootstrappers and two men. These students are completing requirements for a bachelor of science degree and many are taking night classes.

Newman Members Hold First of Talks

Father Gerald Noonan delivered the first of a series of lectures for Omaha University Newman Club members at their regular meeting last Sunday.

The lectures are designed to help Catholic students on a Secular campus to better understand their dual vocation as students and Catholics.

Discussions on academic subjects are held from a religious and moral viewpoint.

Father Noonan, in his first lecture, spoke on "Literature and Morality", related principles for judging good literature, both as an art and as a moral presentation.

Part of the funds for the university's library were donated by the late hotel man Eugene C. Eppley.

Annual Theta Chi Sweater Girl To Be Announced At Dance Tonight

Theta Chi social fraternity will sponsor an all-Greek dance tonight in the Student Center Ballroom.

The annual Sweater Dance will feature the announcement of the 1963 Sweater Girl during the intermission. Candidates are Jan Thompson, Zeta Tau Alpha; Linda Flack, Sigma Kappa; Sue Collins, Alpha Xi Delta; and Judy Eichhorn, Chi Omega.

Lee Kallstrom, master of ceremonies, will present the traditional garter to the new Sweater Girl. Shirley Johnson, the Sweater Girl of 1962 will present the gifts.

One Greek card per couple is required for admittance. Each card represents one vote.

Stan Yank will play from 9 to midnight.

Music Society Initiates Graves, Mahoney, Sun.

Janice Graves and Diane Mahoney were initiated into Delta Omicron Sunday, at the home of Billie Poulson. This brings the total membership to 19.

Delta Omicron is an international professional music fraternity for women. Formal rush is held once a year, usually at the end of Sept. However, the group does pledge informally second semester freshmen.

Billie Poulson is this year's president. Other officers are: Vice Pres., Mary Kay Menze; Secy., Gayle Hasch; Treas., Ruth Helligso; Warden, Jana Doxon, and Publicity, Lynn Dyba.

Frats Winners Of Sig Ep Sing

Lambda Chi Alpha and Alpha Xi Delta were announced winners of the annual Sig Ep Sing Sept. 27.

Jim Kaspar, Lambda Chi Alpha song leader, and Diane Mahoney, song leader for Alpha Xi Delta, accepted trophies for their groups.

Chi Omega and Tau Kappa Epsilon won second place honors and third place was captured by Sigma Kappa and Theta Chi.

Competition song for the sororities was "Green Fields." "They Call the Wind Maria" was the fraternity song.

Fotopoulos: English Different In America 'But Girls All Look Alike,' (All Beautiful)

By JoAnn Bishop

Meet Dionysios Fotopoulos, a 21 year-old citizen of Athens, Greece. Dionysios, who is using the English name Dennis, considers our systems of government much alike. "Both are Democracies. The people rule but in Greece we also have a king."

A second semester sophomore, Dennis is majoring in chemistry.

"I studied English three years in Athens but almost had to learn a new language when I came to Omaha," commented Dennis.

"Your version of English is very different. I had trouble with the slang mostly; but in Greece we speak much faster" he added, "I'm not having any trouble now."

Hair Is Natural Color

Dennis found females in appearance much the same as in Athens. "Greek girls are very interested in fashions. They have France and Italy as well as Greek designs from which to choose. In Athens, make-up is used mostly at night and they leave their hair its natural color," reflected Dennis.

Even activity on dates is similar. "In Athens the boy must be very good at making conversation. He has to carry the evening. But here the girls do all the talking."

Football A Mystery

Sports are what Dennis misses most. "Your game of football is something I still don't understand. In Athens, Dennis enjoyed soccer, basketball and track. "Every country but America seems to have soccer. And I'm too short to play basketball here," he added.

"I was interviewed once in Athens. Our basketball team placed second in the city."

Dennis thinks Americans move too fast. "You're always in a hurry. In Greece we live much slower and we seem to have many more holidays," he commented.

Italy Like Best

"I have traveled," he continued, "in Spain, Turkey and Italy. I liked Italy best because they are much like the Greek. They are very festive and like to enjoy life. Many of their customs are similar to Greece. After all we civilized each other."

"Winters in Omaha are so cold and there is too much snow. In Athens, winter is the best time of year. It is always sunny. I like snow but not all the time."

Dennis chose to study in America because he spoke English. "I could have gone to Germany but I don't know the language. Also I have an uncle living in Omaha. He has been here many years and is a citizen."

Bon Voyage

After passing the English tests and getting a health certificate Dennis was on his way to America.

Dennis has a younger sister in Athens. "When I finish school she hopes to go to Paris to become a lawyer. My father is a retired lawyer."

After he gets his degree in chemistry Dennis plans to return to Athens. "First I will fill my military service which is two years. Then I will start my career," he ended.

Help For Young Nigerian People Spurs On Student To Leave Home For Six Years Away From Family

By Bill Grow

What prompts a person to leave two young children, travel 8,000 miles and spend six years of his life to study at the University of Omaha?

"There are things a man feels he must do no matter how high the price to be paid," Timothy Adabayo explained.

Timothy, or Amodu as he was originally named, pointed out that his studies here at The Grace Bible Institute are items necessary to prepare him for his life's work in his native Nigeria, Africa.

"I want to help the young people of my country. This is a two-part job. They must be instructed in the ways of religion and made more aware of the part they must play in society," Adabayo said.

Missionary

Schooling at the Grace Bible Institute for the past three years completes his theology requirements and the ensuing three years here as a geography major will make Adabayo qualified to teach in a missionary school in his hometown.

"I probably won't receive as much pay at the missionary school as I would at a state school, but I will have a greater freedom, which to me is important in properly educating and guiding our own people," he continued.

What causes a man to make such sweeping changes when his plans as of age nineteen included nothing more phenomenal than "making a living"?

His nineteenth year saw Timothy forsake his native religion, Moslem, for Christianity. It was the same year in which he decided he could do many things for his country and his God.

"Before I was able to make up my mind to do all these things, though, I met my wife. She helped me to decide and is helping me carry out my plans."

Wife Working

Mary, Tim's wife, is with him here. She is employed at Western Electric. Tim works during the summers.

"I miss my children terribly at times. But sometimes I think the strain of separation is nearly unbearable for my wife. We haven't seen the youngsters for three years and there is no money for a summer trip home.

"There are times when I can only stand by quietly until my wife gets through one of her infrequent sessions of loneliness and homesickness. But she comes out of it quickly and realizes that what we are doing here will be more beneficial to the children than practically anything we could do," Tim added in his very quiet voice.

Happy Accident

Migrating to the University of Omaha was "a very happy accident". Originally, the pair came to Omaha because many of the missionaries they came in contact with were schooled here. "When I discovered OU I knew I would be able to complete all of my requirements here," he said.

Only one thing mars the couple's stay here. Winter.

He described last winter's week-long periods of sub-zero temperatures as some of the most miserable weeks he or his wife had ever spent.

"Worse torture comes when one knows what to expect and can only sit and wait for it," he said.

"However, he continued, "I have noticed that no one around Omaha seems to like it either. Perhaps it is something one never really learns to like; at least I never could."

Winter is the time when Tim and his wife are glad they can't afford a car. "I might be tempted to drive it on these streets, and that is a sure way to shorten one's life," he added without a smile.

Often Confused

Does he enjoy Omaha and its people? "Very much so, but, I admit, I am often confused."

"I was told often in Nigeria that people in America are always in a hurry and now I believe it."

Blind Student Attends OU

By Livi Bergman

"Everything is just great!"

These happy words were expressed by Omaha University student Dick Gulizia. Even though he is blind, Dick has earned 33 hours of credit toward his history major since he entered OU last fall as a freshman.

Blindness struck Dick at 17, after he had been a four-year golf letterman at South High and won the Inter-city Golf Championship his freshman year. Sugar diabetes was the cause.

Encouraged

Dick's misfortune hasn't dampened his ambition. Encouraged to go on to college by a South High teacher, Dr. Edward Kuncell, who is also blind, Dick began giving serious thought to the idea.

After talking to some of the OU faculty and receiving additional encouragement, Dick decided to enroll at OU.

Familiar With Campus

Now he is more familiar with the campus than a lot of freshmen who are still frequently getting mixed-up. He can walk to classes alone, feeling his way with a white cane, equally as well as walking with friends.

In each course, Dick has friends to take notes for him and read his assignments to him each night.

Dick types his homework on a Braille typewriter that Pen and Sword, the Bootstrap organization, gave him last year.

"I've never had an embarrassing moment at OU," said Dick. "Students and faculty, alike, have been most helpful and without this extra consideration I just couldn't have made it."

History Teacher

Dick's main ambition is to follow in the footsteps of Dr. Kuncell and become a history teacher in secondary education. This semester he would like to raise his grade point average to a 2.8 so that he can join the history fraternity.

Dick is married to his high school sweetheart, Pat Butera and has two children, Thomas, two years old and Richard, 10 months.

OU PRESIDENT AT WASHINGTON MEET

President Bail is in Washington D. C. today, attending the last day's meetings of the American Council on Education.

The meetings, which started Wednesday, are for representatives of the 1,212 institutions and colleges across the country that make up the council.

Before leaving, Dr. Bail said the council is scheduled to discuss problems of higher education.

"A few of the specific topics scheduled," he said, "include culture and the arts, economic growth, and institutional responsibilities."

Busch To Lincoln

Biology Department Head Dr. Karl Busch will attend a meeting of the Nebraska Certification Advisory Committee in Lincoln Tuesday, Oct. 10.

The committee is meeting to set standards for teacher certification in Nebraska.

Committee recommendations will be brought before the Unicameral sometime next year.

Psychologists Introduce Rodents Into Student Center Basement!

ATTENTION: All co-eds who dislike small furry animals! There are going to be rats in the basement of the Administration building this year.

Fifty hooded rats have been donated to the Psychology department as a beginning for an animal laboratory. The animals, called hooded, because the coloring from their shoulders up resembles a hood, are valued at about $150.

Both rats and cages were donated by Mr. Stephen Johnsen, a former alumni. Mr. Johnsen used the rats while writing his thesis this summer.

The lab will be located under the Data Processing center in the basement of the Adm Bldg. A wall is being put in at the present time.

According to Associate Professor of Psychology, John Newton, the lab will be used mostly by the experimental psychology classes, and also for demonstrations in the others.

WORDS: THEIR CAUSE AND CURE

Today let us take up the subject of etymology (or entomology, as it is sometimes called) which is the study of word origins (or insects, as they are sometimes called).

Where are word origins (insects) to be found? Well sir, sometimes words are proper names which have passed into the language. Take, for instance, the words used in electricity: ampere was named after its discoverer, the Frenchman Andre Marie Ampere (1775-1836); similarly, ohm was named after the German G.S. Ohm (1781-1854), watt after the Scot James Watt (1736-1819), and bulb after the American Fred C. Bulb (1843-1912).

There is, incidentally, quite a poignant little story about Mr. Bulb. Until Bulb's invention, all illumination was provided by gas, which was named after its inventor Milton T. Gas who, strange to tell, had been Bulb's roommate at Cal Tech! In fact, strange to tell, the third man sharing the room with Bulb and Gas was also one whose name burns bright in the annals of illumination—Walter Candle!

Many fine citizens were severely injured

The three roommates were inseparable companions in college. After graduation all three did research in the problems of artificial light, which at this time did not exist. All America used to go to bed with the chickens, and many fine citizens were, alas, severely injured falling off the roost.

Well sir, the three comrades—Bulb, Gas, and Candle—promised to be friends forever when they left school, but success, alas, spoiled all that. First Candle invented the candle, got rich, and forgot his old friends. Then Gas invented gas, got rich, bankrupted Candle, and forgot his old friends. Then Bulb invented the bulb, got rich, bankrupted Gas, and forgot his old friends.

Candle and Gas, bitter and impoverished at the ages respectively of 75 and 71, went to sea as respectively the world's oldest and second oldest cabin boy. Bulb, rich and grand, also went to sea, but he went in style—as a first-class passenger on luxury liners.

Well sir, strange to tell, all three were aboard the ill-fated Lusitania when she was sunk in the North Atlantic. And strange to tell, when they were swimming for their lives after the shipwreck, all three clambered aboard the same dinghy!

Well sir, chastened and made wiser by their brush with peril, they fell into each other's arms and wept and exchanged forgiveness and became fast friends all over again.

For three years they drifted in the dinghy, shaking hands and singing the Cal Tech rouser all the while. Then, at long last, they spied a passing liner and were taken aboard.

They remained fast friends for the rest of their days, which, I regret to report, were not many, because the liner which picked them up was the Titanic.

What a pity that Marlboros were not invented during the lifetimes of Bulb, Gas, and Candle. Had there been Marlboros, these three friends never would have grown apart because they would have realized how much, despite their differences, they still had in common. I mean to say that Marlboros can be lit by candle, by gas, and by electricity, and no matter how you light them, you always get a lot to like—a filter, a flavor, a pack or box that makes anyone—including Bulb, Gas, and Candle—settle back and forswear pettiness and smile the sweet smile of friendship on all who pass!

Majeski Returns To OU To Instruct Print Making

By Mark Hallgren

A new face has been seen around the Art dept. this semester and for new students, meet Thomas Majeski, the newest addition to the teaching staff. Mr. Majeski's title is Instructor of Art.

The Campus is not unfamiliar to Mr. Majeski. He attended OU as a student from 1955 to 1960. He majored in art. From OU Mr. Majeski went to the State University of Iowa where he earned his masters degree. At the university, he studied print making under the world's finest print maker, Mauricio Lasansky. As it happens, anyone can take Print Making, but Mr. Lasansky chooses from only the top students those he wishes to teach and work with. In the opinion of Dr. Blackwell, head of the Art Department, this is quite an honor.

In Mr. Majeski's mind, he is basically a print maker. Print making consists of scratching or etching the desired lines onto any hard surface. The ink is then poured onto the plate and the paper is pressed onto the plate. The picture that is left on the paper is called a "print." This process is, however, much harder than it sounds.

When asked if he had any opinions that he would like to talk about, he said, "Artists should work, not talk. It is for the critics to evaluate."

Mr. Majeski is married and has two children, Terri Lea, 9, and Michael, 7.

He has appeared in several important art shows in the country. Of late he has appeared in the North West Print Makers International in Seattle and the Ultimate Concerns National Print Exhibition at Ohio University. He has three works now showing at the Joslyn: "Ellen", color in talio, "Beginning of Winter", engraving, and "Iowa Landscape", an oil.

Benning's Return Boosts OU Sports

By Larry French

On September 1, 1963, Don Benning started the third phase of his career in athletics at the University of Omaha, OU's new assistant football coach began his career here as a fullback for the Indians in 1955. This year Benning comes to the University as assistant line coach, head wrestling coach and men's physical education instructor. A valuable addition to Coach Al Caniglia's staff, Benning spends his Saturday afternoons scouting next week's opponents. His able scouting report reflected last Saturday when the Indians were able to contain the vaunted Idaho State running attack.

Dana College at Blair, Nebraska lost their leading ground gainer when Benning decided to come to Omaha U. after spending one year at Dana. In his first year at OU, Benning played wingback, blockingback, and fullback on a team which used both the single wing and "T" formations of attack. The first in a history of knee injuries kept Benning out of action the last three games of the season. That year the Indians compiled a 9 and 1 record. Also in his rookie year, Benning remembered two things which were big moments in his career. First was a 62 yard TD run from scrimmage against Bradley University and the second was starting in a game against classy Wayne State University of Detroit. In 1956 Benning recalled the Indians' upset win over Idaho

Don Benning Returns To OU, This Time As A Coach.

State in a game which ruined their homecoming celebration. That year he was the teams' leading ground gainer as their record was 6-2-1. He missed the last two games of the '56 season because of another knee injury. In his senior year, Benning played 60 minutes in the first game, injured his knee, and didn't get to play again until the last game of the season.

After his graduation in 1956, Benning spent six months in the Marine Reserve active duty program and then came back to the university for his graduate internship. During his internship, Benning spent one year as assistant coach under Lloyd Cardwell and the next under the present coach Caniglia.

The second phase of Benning's career at OU ended when he received his Masters degree in 1961 and went to work as program director at the Near North Branch of the YMCA.

Omaha North High School provided the nurturing ground for Benning's athletic career as he won six varsity letters; two each in football, wrestling, and baseball. Wrestling in the 155 pound class Benning was second in the State meet in 1954. That year he also batted .436 while playing baseball with North's American Legion team. The following year he played semi-pro ball on the Woodbine, Ia. Whiz Kids with baseball players such as Bob Gibson, the current St. Louis Cardinal pitching stand-out.

Victoria is the daughter of Benning and his wife, the former Marcideña Williams of Houston. They both are proud to be associated with OU and its progressive policies. Benning feels the athletic staff is good to work with as they have the knowledge, inter-respect and co-operation necessary for the formulation of good teams and good young men graduating from their teams.

Cardwell Smiles As CC Interest Grows

CROSS COUNTRY—Jim Gemb

Coach Lloyd Cardwell, sporting a smile over the revived interest in cross country on campus, has announced a five meet schedule for his harriers. The schedule includes the N.A. I.A. Championship which will take place on November 30 in Elmwood Park over the four mile course.

The schedule: October 11, Peru State Teachers College at Peru; October 15, South Dakota University at Vermillion; October 18, Midland College here; October 25, Simpson College here; November 1, Nebraska Wesleyan University here; November 9, C.I.C. Championship, Hays, Kansas; November 30, N.A.I.A. Championship here.

Cardwell was pleased after a meeting produced fourteen candidates for the squad. Included in the roster are junior lettermen Loren Drum, Ray Hultman and Herb Rhodes. Drum, Hultman, and Rhodes are half-milers and are the only ones on the squad with college experience in cross country.

The Indians did not field a team last year because only four men expressed interest in trying out for the team.

Intramural Football In Third Big Week With Zekes On Top

With Intramural flag football now into the third week of competition, a total of four teams hold undefeated records. A perennial power, the Zeke Moe Joes stand at the pinnacle with a 4-0 mark; Sig Eps are second with 3-0; Pi Kaps third at 2-0; and the Darts are 1-0. The above were standings as of Monday, September 30.

One of the most thrilling games seen yet this campaign was between TKE and the Sig Eps last Monday. The Sig Ep offense took off in high gear the second time they got their hands on the ball. Sig Ep quarterback Gary Ragnow hit end Mike Moore with a 35 yard pitch and Moore carried the ball the remaining few yards into the end zone. The contest remained at 6-0 until late in the game when TKE's Ken Wiltse threw a strike to Ed Cenk. When Howie Fouts scored the TKE extra point the score went to 7-6.

With only three plays remaining in the game Ragnow hit Larry Hammer with a 25 yard aerial in the end zone to give the Sig Eps a 12-7 advantage and the victory. A completed TKE pass on the last play of the game saw Jim Freelin stop TKE's Howie Fouts one yard short of the goal and a victory.

Rodeo Is Big Event For O'Connor

By Ken McEwen

"Watch shoot number three for O'Connor up on Baldy Socks."

Any OU student who thought they heard the name at the Aksarben rodeo last week, was not hearing things. And it was the same Terry O'Connor that frequents the OUampi room and the campus at 60th and Dodge.

After their amazement to find that it was the same Terry O'Connor that they knew, they found that he did not get along too well with the horse. Terry didn't amass too many points during the Aksarben cowboy convention, but was always in there trying and willing to take another spill, just to gain experience.

Experience was one of the main reasons that he entered the Aksarben contest. He said that he entered because "I wanted to try the better horses that were not available in the smaller rodeos throughout Nebraska and Iowa. Entering just for experience wasn't easy either, because there was a 25 dollar entry fee for three go rounds. He also came out of the competition with a blue and red leg from his knee to his ankle. That injury was the result of a bronc stepping on him after he was thrown.

At Aksarben, Terry has come in second best to such horses as Baldy Spots, Hot Stuff and Baldy, the latter giving him the bruise on his leg.

Bruises are nothing new to the junior speech major either. Earlier in the summer a very sore thigh was the result of a honest to goodness horse falling on top of him. These sore spots are in addition to the smaller ones that result each time he takes a fall from atop one of the bucking beasts.

But the story of Terry's rodeo career has not been in the dust all of the time. He says that he did ride to the buzzer on one occasion earlier in the summer. He has also managed to gain back some of the entry fees that he has faithfully pitched in to enter each rodeo. Any experienced and successful rodeo hand will tell you that it takes quite a few times with your nose in the dirt and paying countless entry fees before you begin to stay up to the buzzer and begin to win back some of that fee money.

With Terry's 210 pounds atop a bucking bronc there is bound to be good action. Terry has had a lot of action this summer since his initial ride this July in the Tekama rodeo. He entered on a lark but that first time out of the chute he was so thrilled that he continued on throughout the summer. Another Sig Ep, who entered with him, Wendall Misner, rode at the same rodeos in the Nebraska and Iowa circuits. They rode in the Ashland and Springfield, Nebraska and Mount Airy and Dayton, Iowa events.

FRONTIER AIRLINES

Idaho Doomed In Last Half

Band Day Crowd Of 4,300 Is Pleased With Big Red's Impressive Showing.

The Bengals from Idaho State came to Omaha last Saturday and were met by a strong North wind. They also met Wayne Backes and a tough OU defense.

The spirited OU Indians, up after a loss to Morningside the week before, came from behind to whip the favored Bengals, 19-6. It was Backes who led the backfield through the tough potato land line.

And as for the much talked about Indian line, they lived up to the praise, as they frequented the opposition's backfield and charges as only he could.

An interception for OU in the third period put the ball in Idaho territory. But on the first play from scrimmage, Roger Sayers gave the ball back via fumble. Big Red dug in, and pushed forward on defense until it was fourth down for Idaho on their own 23 yard line. The punt was too high in to the 40 mile per hour wind and it drifted back after an about face to within one yard of the scrimmage line.

It was Backes who carried the ball to the eight on a 15 yarder.

It's Mighty Big Trouble for Idaho Quarterback as the Heft of The OU Line Closes In stacked up the middle many times.

A Band Day crowd of 43 hundred watched Idaho State draw for first blood late in the second quarter after a hard fought first half. The Indians had been a threat various times during the first two periods, but failed to

He then took it to the one and scored on his second try on a plunge. Meyers missed the kick and it was a tie ballgame.

Idaho's second play from scrimmage saw a pass interception by Indian Don Crum. A personal foul against Omaha gave the ball back to Idaho however.

Omaha called for time near the end of the third period as the Bengals had a fourth and five. The time out meant that Idaho could not run out the clock and get the fourth down play going with the wind. Omaha held strong and took over the ball on their own 34 as the last quarter began.

What's That?

push the ball across the goal line.

As the second half began, the temperature was dropping and the wind was rising along with Indian spirits. Coach Al Caniglia had made changes in the offense and defense of the game and had pepped up the Big Red was taking on the likes of Morningside of the North Central Conference and Idaho State of the Big Sky Loop, Northern was playing games with Winona and Whitewater.

Missed Opportunities

One thing is for sure, had Omaha been able to take advantage of those missed scoring opportunities last year against Bork and company, they might have been in the Camelia Bowl and had a national championship. This thought will be strong in the Indians' minds.

As for OU's side of the picture, the pass defense will have its greatest test to date. Idaho State and Morningside showed little in the way of an aerial game and so that is an unknown quantity of the Omaha arsenal at this time.

OU's defense looked impressive during the second half against Idaho State and Northern scouts in the press box were impressed by the rugged line play. Coach Caniglia stated this week that OU's only defense against Bork will be a constant outside rush and the hope to intercept "our share" of Bork's flips. If Don Crum, Gerry Allen, Lee Milner and Ken Allen are ready, OU may just do that.

There is no doubt in most minds that Omaha will have the best of the ground game, and success. While Northern's defense is not exactly paper thin, Roger Sayers and company should have a field day with the Huskie flanks. The Indian offense showed flashes of 1962 during the second half last week and should be primed this time.

The most important factor in Omaha's case, however, is the mental attitude. If the Indians want to win this one bad enough they CAN. They have superior manpower and coaching but the desire is a question. If Northern Illinois wins, they will undoubtedly be ranked number one in the nation. Last year's champ, Central Oklahoma, has already been beaten.

If Omaha can pull this one out, it will surely gain them a high rank and put them in line for a great season. But one thing is for sure, it will take the greatest effort ever put forth by the players and coaches to win this one. The rewards will be rich and the results nationwide. The game is a sellout, the tension will be next to unbearable, for those lucky enough to be there, it should be one heck of a day to remember.

Gerald Allen is Surrounded by The Bengals of Idaho State

A Meyers to Gerald Allen touchdown pass was called back on a holding penalty and Omaha was assessed 15 yards. The Omaha section protested loudly when the 34 yard play was called back.

But Meyers, still calm, fired another, this time to end Jim Kettle up the middle on the 18. Kettle took it from there to make it 12-6. In all the play covered 49 yards!

The kick-off came back towards OU territory and was pounced on by Duane McAndrews. The ball was given to OU because it was anyone's ball where it lay.

The clock showed about 6 and a half minutes left when Backes went over once again from the two. The drive had taken seven plays and covered 31 yards.

For the remaining 8 and a half minutes the Indians played time consuming football with the opposition only getting a hold of the ball for five plays in the final quarter.

But daddy-it's absolutely vital!

I mean positively. Everybody—just everybody's got one! Oh daddy, you're absolutely medieval. I mean, I could've just died when Janie and Marcy and Deborah and Jean—and even that kookie little Katie—said their fathers had set one up for them—just as a regular part of getting ready for college. What was I supposed to say—'Well, girls, you know my father's a nasty old ogre?' Really! It was so humiliating! Yes, daddy. I know you've got my best interests at heart—but look at it this way. You're supposed to be an adult and responsible and all that when you're a college student, right? I mean, it's the first time you're really on your own, right? Well, dad, how can a girl be on her own without her very own personal checking account? You will? Oh daddy, I knew you'd understand! Yes, I'll meet you at the U.S. National tomorrow noon. You're just the greatest, that's all! Just think, with my very own checking account, I'll be independent. Why of course, it is your money. But daddy, don't you see—that's what makes a girl feel so—so free!
